GERMAN EMBASSY DENIES BACKING

Report in Which Von Bernstorff Is Named May Be Investigated at Washington.

Leader Says They Are Ready for Long Fight-Will Call Out Machinists To-Night.

WASHINGTON, July 16,-Although would not positively confirm or paid $2,000 to get the Remington arms works strike started, Secretary Morrison of the American Labor Federation suggested to-day that if British Ambassader Spring-Rice made such a charge to the State Department he That's all we think about must have known what he was talking about.

Neither the States Department nor the British Embassy would discuss the matter. That the complaint had been made was generally believed, however. It was thought the Departsent would investigate, as such a payment by Gérman Ambassador Sernstorff, to whom Spring-Rice was reported to have attributed it, would have been a wertous breach of neutrality. The German-Embassy unqualifiedly enied the story. BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 16 .-Prospects for averting the threatened trike of machinists at the plant of the Remington Arms-Union Metallic the Remington Arms-Union Metallic Company, as a result of union differences, and possibility of machinists throughout the city apparently grew less to-day with the announcement from J. J. Keppler, International Vice President of the machinists, that a strike order would be issued to-night calling out the machinists at the Arms Company's plant and in the city. Keppler returned to Bridgepost to-day after a conference last night at New York at which eight international labor heads, representing the various organisations involved, President for the murder of his wife. His last request was that he might see his six children who had testified against him. They refused to meet him.

The body of Mrs. Sprouse was found on a farm near Brentwood, Mo., Nov. 14, 1914, two weeks after she disappeared from her East St. Louis home.

not stated just what occurred at that conference.

In his statement Mr. Keppler said:
"We propose to fight this battle to the end. We have armies at our command, but we do not intend to put them all in the field at once. We are calling out to-night all the machinists in factories doing work for the U. M. C. company. As regards "German influences," we blame this entire affair on the Major, and it is up to him to settle it. As far as German money is concerned this strike can be settled within twenty-four hours it Major Penfield will rescind the order given to the millwrights to join the carpenters union and will keep his hands off purely labor matters."

No statement was made by Major No statement was ande by Major W. W. Penfield of the Arms Company, but at the company's offices it was said that they was awaiting developments.

Fine of $100.

When Frederick H. Fleitmann twenty-four, of No. 32 East Sixtyseventh Street was arraigned before Magistrate Corrigan in the West Side Court last Tuesday, he denied that he had been speeding the night before. Motorcycle Policeman Eynon, who who had summoned him, testified that the young man had driven from Seventy-fourth Street to Columbus Circle at the illegal pace of thirty-five miles an hour. He was certain, he said on "That can't be possible," Fleitman declared. "I wasn't at Seventy-fourth Street at all. I was in the Hotel Majestic, at Seventy-second Street, for two hours before midnight, so the policeman couldn't have followed me from Seventy-fourth Street. I went garage. Besides, I didn't wear a straw hat, as the policeman says, for always wear a soft gray hat when drive my car evenings. The policeman has made a mistake."

"No, there's no mistake," Magis-"No, there's no inistake," Magistrate Cornell declared. "Some one in this case is lying. You come back here on Friday, and bring some of the people who saw you in the Majestic for two hours last evening."

Eynon, anxious to defend himself, raced from court to the Majestic, but, fast as he went. Fleitmann was ahead.

Russell's throat from ear to ear.
Russell had insinuated that the Governor had something to do with the mysterious disappearance of a bill. The Governor walked up to Russell and speaking in a low tone made his threat.
Russell retorted: "You can try that whenever you get ready."
Standing squarely between the speaker and the audience, Gov. Brewer said:
"Whenever you make the charge, I am going to do it. If you don't believe it make the charge, and I'll show you better than I can tell you."
Russell did not repeat the charge.
